11. Bryce and Ronnie Athlete Snow Safety Foundation Update: Cindy Berlack

Cindy Berlack presented on the BRASS foundation update and its efforts on presenting snow safety at events and to educate athletes. The foundation has taken their presentation internationally as well as to the U.S.
Government. BRASS is trying to increase warning signs for avalanche safety at international venues and to have them in English. It has been four years since the loss of their sons. Laura Astle was also present.

The BRASS foundation wants all national team coaches to take a one day avalanche safety course. Ms. Berlack expressed that progress was being made and was thankful of the change in the organization for nurturing the whole athlete. Mr. Nelson thanked Ms. Berlack for her presentation and involvement and noted that we all still feel the loss of Bryce and Ronnie.

Laura Astle also spoke about her appreciation for working with the BRASS foundation on avalanche safety training. Mr. Shaw mentioned that Ski & Snowboard is taking a comprehensive approach to safety and Ms. Pitt is serving as the compliance and safety officer.

Mr. Bodensteiner also thanked the BRASS foundation for their efforts. Mr. Bodensteiner provided an update on the sports committees and their efforts to coordinate the national team to club relationship. Additionally, he discussed the club development program and club certification as well as high performance center growth and development and the efforts to enhance collaboration and continuing education. The focus is on quality coaching, reflective practice and psychological safety as well as improving athlete and coach relationships. We have developed a coaches’ code to improve collaboration and communication with athletes, to hear their perspectives and to bring those perspectives to the team to improve the role of the athlete and to have athlete liaisons to help meet our athletes’ needs. Mr. Bodensteiner also thanked the Athletes’ Council for its efforts to improve the level of communications and perspectives with athletes.

Mr. Bodensteiner provided additional comments about a new online coaching system that is being developed to assist with collaboration and information sharing as well as the athlete experience project. Mr. Nelson thanked Mr. Bodensteiner for his presentation and further discussion followed on new platforms for communication.

Ski & Snowboard will advocate for gender equity on committees and council as well as change in the organization. Mr. Paine thanked all of the volunteers in their efforts and for their time.

Mr. Tauber reported on the succession planning for the council. The initiative started publicly in February in Are, Sweden. FIS was founded in 1924 and there have only been four presidents. They have not had an election process other than by acclamation. Mr. Tauber also discussed the governance group. Mr. Nelson thanked Mr. Tauber for his report.
18. Communications Report: Tom Webb

Mr. Webb provided the communications report. The number of communications managers has increased for coverage for each sport and they are generating pro-active media reports.

Mr. Webb reported on the daily update emails as well as assistance with communications providing other support to partners and athletes. Communications has also increased its non-competition communication to assist with coaches, education, and sport science.

Mr. Paine introduced Ms. Adlerman, CEO of Boardspan, and thanked the Board members for taking the survey requested by Boardspan. Mr. Webb also welcomed Ms. Adlerman. Boardspan provided an assessment of the NGB boards as requested and paid for by the USOPC to help support board governance.

Ms. Adlerman discussed Ski & Snowboard’s mission and that the Board and the organization should collectively be aligned with the mission. She presented the results of the survey on the Board’s role and responsibility, priorities, structure, and strategy. Ms. Adlerman discussed the self-assessment and efforts of the Board on a range of topics and subject matter including culture and communication, engagement, strategy alignment, diversity, expertise, and management and board succession planning.

Ms. Adlerman responded to questions from Board members and management regarding responses from Ski & Snowboard and other NGBs. Ms. Adlerman also mentioned that Boardspan is developing an onboarding program for all NGB boards to assist with new board members, especially athlete board members. Mr. Paine thanked Ms. Adlerman for her presentation.
